

Leading Virtual Teams

Are your people ready to be better leaders in today’s VUCA world? Leaders of people in your business may be used to having face-to-face access to their teams, a lot of the time instantly. However, with the current global climate changing the way we work, you need to feel secure in your knowledge, tools and skills to lead.

This LockedIn Learning journey will provide you a solid foundation in the principles of leading people and then lift them into the current environment where leaders are managing their teams virtually. Participants will explore challenges this environment creates, and give them opportunities to grow their leadership skills through the application of leadership behaviours that can easily slip from the mind of even the most people-centric leaders.
